

Resources on Fertility Benefits for Intended Parents

WORKPLACE BENEFITS

65% of employers* offering fertility coverage do so because an employee asked for it. Here are some steps you can take to explore your workplace benefits:

- Speak to your human resources team about any existing benefits, such as funding for legal services, or programs through Carrot and Progyny.
- Discuss adding these benefits if they do not already exist. If you're uncomfortable approaching your employer directly, some benefit companies can ask for you — without mentioning your name.
- Contact us for tips on how to raise these conversations!

* Mercer Health & Benefits, "Employer experience with and attitudes toward, coverage of infertility treatment," May 31, 2006

FERTILITY MEDICATION DISCOUNTS

Some intended parents may qualify for discounted fertility medication through certain government programs:

- Speak with your IVF clinic to understand the options you may be qualified for.
- Fertility medication can also be delivered directly to your door through emerging new services, sometimes at a discount versus going to your pharmacy.
- Contact us for a list of resources!

GRANTS AND DISCOUNTS

Many organizations offer grants and discounts for certain populations pursuing fertility treatments, including:

- Same sex male couples
- People of color
- Cancer survivors
- Contact us for more information on these specific groups!